The hill where the blackberries grow,
I'll be eight years old, my Dolly,
And you'lf be one, you know.

Don't you remember, Dolly-I'm perfectly sure you'day morning
When I woke last birthday morning
The first thing as was you'r
The first thing as was you'r
Waiting, you lovely child,
And when you saw I was looking
You arretched out your arms and smiled.

And you're just as lovely as ever,
Though your curls are very though your curls are very ledy,
And your poor legs wabble addy,
And your refet eye's fallen in;

A JOURNAL TO HER CREDIT. Patrick Gass's famous "Journal of the Lewis and Clarke Expedition to the Palific" is not strictly a literary produc tion, but it was of great importan Western Virginia asks that it be put down to her credit, Gass lived for some down to her credit. Gass lived for some time in what is now Brooke county, West Virginia, where some of his descendants still reside. The publication of his "Journal" ante-dated Wither's "Border Warfare" one year, I believe. Then there was delightful old "Portorayon" (General David A. Strother), whose "Virginia Illustrated." a series of illustrated articles in Harper's Monthy, and afterward published in book form, attracted wide attention and made for him a pational reputation. From 1879 to 1885 Strother was Consul General to Mexico, and collected while there material for a work on the character of the Mexicans, but his death in 1888 prevented his fluishing it. Hon. Daniel Bedinger Lucas, prealdent of the Supreme Court of Appeals of the State, is a poet as well as a judge. He has published "The Maid of North-tumberland," "The Land Where We Lay Dreaming," "Ballads and Madrigals," "St. Agnes of Gulenne," and other verses. His ballads and lyrics especially are graceful and musical. He does not philosophize or sermonize, but lets the beauty of his rhymes preach its own sermon. Fortunately his judicial duties have not caused him to abandon his have not caused him to abandon his Politics, Law and literatures.

Congressman George Weeley Atkinson, of the First West Virginia district, combines politics, literature and the law. Strange bed-fellows, indeed, but he has anceeded in making them lie down gracefully together. He is the author of "The West Virginia Pulpit," "Among the Moonshiners," "A History of Kanawha," "Don't," and "Prominent Meu of West Virginia." The last named is just out of the press, and is edited by Mr. Atkinson and A. F. Gibbens, of Charleston, together. The latter is a successful writer of both prose and verse. Mr. Hu Maxwell, of Tucker county, has published a volume of verse which he calls "Idyls of the Goldan Shore," most of the peems being written while the author was residing temporarily in California. They are quite creditable productions.

A HISTORY. Mr. Virgil A. Lewis, of Mason county, about a year sgo, published a "History of West Virginia." an extensive work in two parts and covering 744 pages. It was the result of an immense amount of labor and research on the part of the author, being the first attempt to cover the entire field of West Virginia history. It has had a large sale and is one of the State's most important literary productions.

Dr. John P. Hale, of Charleston, is be, soon r. Hate, of Charlesco, is the author of an exceedingly interesting history of "Trans-Allegheny Pioneers," beginning as early as 1748. It is a book of about 300 pages crowded with facts, incidents, and anecdotes of the early days in the Great Kanawha Valley.

WRITERS AND TEACHERS.

MRITERS AND TRACHERS.

Some of the members of the faculty of the West Virginia University have been writing as well as teaching. D. B. Parinton, LL. D., formerly Vice President of that institution, published last year, through Futnam's Sons, a very able and scholarly treatise on "Christian Theism," which has been received generally as one of the most astisfactory and valuable works on that subject. Professor I. O. White, Ph. D., the eminent geologist, bas contributed largely to the scientific literature of the country during the last ten or fifteen years, and Dr. J. W. Hartigan has issued an excellent text-book on physiology and hygiene. Returning to poetry we have Mrs. Danske Dandridge, of Shepherdstom, whose exquisite little volume of dainty and charming verse to which she gave the happy title of "Joy and Other Poems," made for her a circle of friends and admirers which is sure to be enlarged and strengthened by her second volume, "Rose Brake," which is just out. The critics have been very kind to her, the genuineness of her postic fire being recognised.

Mr. William Leighton, who moved from Wheeling to Chicago a short time ago, is the author of two stirring dramas—"The Sons of Godwin" and "At the Court of King Edwin," and a blankverse poem called "Change: A Whisper of the Sphinx." At the time of their publication they were much talked about and praised, many people regard-ing the dramas quite as good as Tenny-son's "Harold," which treats of the same

NAMES FROM THE EOLL.

First of all was Colonel Alexander Withers, a highly educated Virginia gentleman, whose mother was, I believe, a first cousin of Sir Walter Scott. He graduated at the famous old college of William and Mary and afterward studied law. Later he moved west of the mountains and in 1831 published at Clarkeburg, "Chronicles of Border Warfare," a well-written work containing a vast atore of information concerning the settlement of Western Virginia—a store which has furnished liberal supplies for every writer on that subject since his day. at the English throne. Charles never foregot this devotion of Virginia to his fortunes, and that colony subsequently was classed with England, Scotland and Ireland as leading members of the empire. In this way Virginia became to be known among the American colonies as the Old Dominion.

BOMANCERS.

In fiction there is the well-known name of Mrs. Alexander McVeigh Miller, who resides near Alderson, Monroe county, and who is paid, I believe, a salary by Robert Bonner's Sons, New York.

Also, Miss McLegd, formerly of Parkersburg and now of Wheeling, whose "Captain McDonald's Daughters" was accepted and published by the Harpers. When the book appeared it created something of a sensation at Parkersburg because of the fact that several prominent residents appeared in the book under thin disguises.

There should be mentioned, also, Mrs. Mary Bowen, writer of verse for the Youlh's Companion and other periodicals; the venerable ex-Senator Waitman T. Willey, who wrote a life of Philip Doddridge; Hon. John A. Hutchinson, the author of two or three able law treatises; Mrs. Jacob Brittingham, a writer of verse; Miss Auna Leach, a clever story work on "A Graduating System for Country Schools" has been accepted as the set thing on that subject.
